CHINA Business Trade Mission 2006

When China was admitted to the World Trade Organization, means that she is committed to further open up her vast domestic markets to foreigners, in return for a bigger export market for her own goods - all in accordance with the stringent rules of international trade and mutually agreed terms and conditions of bi-lateral and multi-lateral trade protocols signed with many countries, including of course Malaysia.

Now is an excellent time for Malaysian Businesses to take serious look at China. It is against this bigger backdrop that Entrepreneur Development Association Malaysia (EDA) has decided to organize another business mission to China in September. We will mobilize all resources and channels that the association has accumulated in China through the years, to ensure a high level of travel comfort and to maximize business match-ups to mission delegates, particularly those who are entering China for the first time. Someone had said “China is not another country, it’s another world!”. Going to China for the first time is akin to going African Safari - you would need an expert guide. For China, EDA is the best guide there is. As in the past, Mission 2006 will once again be led by Dr. Denver Tan - President of EDA. Dr. Denver Tan is a seasoned China Hand, a frequent flyer to China. His knowledge about China will be invaluable to delegates. Both he and the association are well recognized in China - an important factor why all EDA missions have been and will be accorded with quality reception of the highest honour.

The mission is designed for both seasoned China traders and beginners alike, with a special focus on promoting your business to Chinese clients or customers. Your business profile will be sent over to China, seeking Chinese interests to meet with you when you show up during the mission. As a group, delegates will be met by Chinese trade authorities for overviews of regional market niches.

As proven in past missions, a balance of business and sight-seeing activities has worked well and this mission is no different. Spouses are welcome. Depending on final numbers, special purpose trips may be planned to satisfy different taste and interests. Once you have signed up, further travel hints will be sent to you to ensure that your journey is a safe and memorable one.
